Hare: Dirty Weekend - Maroubra

Starters Gun

No problems with Parking, just some confusion over where Bucket would be. "We're right here" says Slotcard, being too short to read the sign set at 2m indicating an Alcohol-free zone which started yesterday. Slotcard went on to recall an incident when using an ATM. A stranger who noticed Slottie struggling with the machine tapped her on the shoulder and pointed upwards to an 'Out of Service' sign.

There was a larger than normal running group, bolstered by visitors, assembled in the park near Maroubra Beach for Dirty Weekend's last run of the year. Hannibal considered himself not quite ready yet to attack the hills and lead the pack but, when he returns from the US we may have someone to show up the young folk. Young Hugo suggested he enjoyed last week's run so much he dragged Mum (Wallaby) along again and there were a couple of visitors (Thomas and Viola) from Vienna amongst the usual semi regulars, Curtseying, Brengun, with friend (didn't get her name but it'll be in the Circle).

Run Report

Dirty Weekend's Deep Water Delightful Wander

Off we headed towards Maroubra Beach, into a stiff southerly and an On Back heading to the headland, which sent us west to a Check and further on up a bloody big hill. Duck had assumed the lead with Thomas trailing, Duck was determined to show how Aussie sporting superiority, which lasted about 100 metres before he feigned a heart murmur. Luckily it was just about the time we found another Check on the summit of the mountain, before taking us northeast and down the hill back towards the beach.

Blondie was assisting her friends at the back of the pack by showing them a clever side passage; she's pretty good on side passages according to Doc but not so good with front or back passages apparently. Up we trudged to another On Back but Blondie hadn't moved from the main road so the smart people then devised a system, which allowed them to trail Blondie the entire way back, therefore not having to endure the long On Backs and Checks.

Back along Maroubra Bay Road to an On Back and Dundee had noticed that Duck was holding back, thereby assuming he had first-hand knowledge of the actual trail, which was shown to be correct as we headed down towards Lurline Bay and the half way bucket, which Thomas almost made before he spilt some Germanic blood on one of our sacred pathways. Now this is going to get me into trouble because Austrians don't like to be referred to as Germanic as they consider themselves intellectually far more intelligent; much like Canadians when compared to Americans; but some people consider Victorians to be Australian so it shouldn't matter.

A plentiful halfway bucket made up of ginger beer, mango juice and champagne, ( I was told this by someone who knew so they must've imported some Dom or Verve Cliquot – dunno if that's the way to spell them cause I don't drink the rubbish) but it still tasted like ginger beer, which kept on repeating to me all the way home.

A quick sprint back to the leafy park area and a very well set run DW.

On On Anonymous.

Après Trail

QR, Slotcard and Viola were late arrivers to the Bucket, having stopped regularly for Aussie Bird Photo opportunities (Feathered variety). Viola was handed a First Aid Kit to dress Thomas's wounded knee as everybody else ignored the scratch, knowing that it didn't compare with Dundee's earlier fence-hurdling efforts.

Circle Up

RA's Report

Maroubra

- A month or so ago, when last here, spoke about Bra Boys (and Girls – Dirty)

(after some technological bumbling with a sound system, Sniffer shone as the Hash IT Guru and we heard some 60s Australian Pop music.)

- Yes, its little Patti and “Stomping at Maroubra”
- Released in 1963 – B side of “He’s my Blond-headed Stompie wompie real gone Surfer Boy”
- Released on the back of the new dance craze – The Stomp

(which Cold Duck and Dirty Weekend enthusiastically)

- Little Pattie was 14 when the song was released.
- Born Patricia Thompson in March 1949, making Little Pattie 70 years old (younger than some of those present)
- She was, or still is 4ft 10 inches tall (147cm)

(Slotcard stands tall in comparison – actually as Duck Stomped, Slotcard version of ‘stomping’ appeared to be scratching her back against an innocent unsuspecting mellaluca – what’s that about?)

- Cousin of late Chrissy Amphlett from Divynals
- Famously, was entertaining troops in Vietnam in 1966 when bloody battle of Long Tan commenced only a few kilometres from where she was performing.
- Stayed after concert and sang for those injured in the battle.
- She was only 17 at the time.
- She was awarded the Vietnam Logistic and Support Medal.
- She won an Order of Australia in 2003 and was inducted into the recording Industries –Hall of Fame in 2009.

- Kept the Pack together – evidenced by Rabbit coming into Bucket at the front of the Pack
- Too many hills (take 2 points off)
- Lovely Beach Views
- Excellent Half-way Bucket (add a Point)
- Front runners made a direct coastal dash home after the half-way Bucket
