Run Report

I think Scotch Mist is sending it so will include when received but, in its absence, the run was excellent, set through the pretty suburbs of Forest Lodge & Glebe, highlighted by the beauty of Blackwattle Bay & all those who missed it will forever be the poorer.

CIRCLE REPORT

Hannibal accepted the responsibility of stand in RA again & began by praising the 11 B2H3 souls, who attended one of the best set runs & eating venues in recent times – where were you lazy bastards? Luckily we had almost as many visitors so the evening wasn't a complete disaster.

As punishment you will all be required to study his verbal rubbish printed below:

History

Forest Lodge Primary is made famous by Sir Douglas Mawson the famous Antarctic explorer and geologist who attended Forest Lodge Public School during the 1890s. In more modern times it was Sir Les who attended the school when the motto was "We Pull Together". This has now been removed to appease the politically correct. And now all the pulling must be done in private!

Where's the forest? Where's the lodge?

Forest Lodge was named after a house built in the area in 1836 by Ambrose Foss (1803 -1862). Foss was a prosperous chemist, grocer and dentist in colonial Sydney who became an alderman and church deacon, also co-founding the Congregational Church in New South Wales. The Forest Lodge estate originally comprised a grant made to Foss of "thirty-one acres, two roods and fifteen perches" under the hand of Sir George Gipps and dated March 8, 1840. He gave his new home the name of Forest Lodge because it was "surrounded by great trees". A real estate advertisement in 1848 described the house as "that delightful Residence at the Glebe...consisting of seven rooms, pantry, storeroom, kitchen, coach-house, stable and other detached offices." (The word 'glebe' means land owned by the church and the suburb was referred to as 'the Glebe' until the early 20th century.) In 1846, Forest Lodge passed into the hands of naturalist and surgeon Dr George Bennett who owned it until 1865 when it became the home of department store founder David Jones. Sadly, the house was demolished in 1912 and today apartments stand on the site, which is opposite the school at 208- 210 Bridge Road.

The Two Gates

Forest Lodge Public School operated as three distinctly separate departments: Boys, Girls and Infants. The school originally opened in 1883 as just a Boys' and Infants' school but by 1885 the attendance rose to over 400, entitling the school to a girls' department. In 1886 a large schoolroom, 19.5m x 7.5m, was added to the existing building with seating for 200 girls and the 'Girls' School' gate built. The Boys' and Infants' entrance was via the Ross Street gate, and boys could also enter by the Charles Street gate, where the male WC was then located. With the addition of the Girls' School enrolments at this time numbered about 1000 – today there are 315 students – and remained around this figure for the next 25 or so years. Even with the high rate of truancy, classrooms were bursting at the seams; lessons were held in hat rooms, weather sheds, corridors and outdoors, and classroom lessons rotated. Further extensions in 1913 gave the school 19 classrooms, allowing an average class size of a more 'manageable' 50 pupils. Boys' and girls' education remained separated at NSW public schools until co-education was introduced in the early 1960s. But Sir Les had left by then, eventually moving on to Narwee "Boys" High

Raising the Cane – discipline at Forest Lodge Public School

We've come a long way from the days when school discipline was enforced with the strap and the cane. Until the late 20th Century, the notion of 'spare the rod, spoil the child' was still in practice in NSW schools. A Forest Lodge 'punishment book' from 1941 shows that students received their fair share of the cane; each misdemeanor and how many 'strokes' a child received was meticulously noted down. Children were caned for a range of behaviour including swearing, stealing, cheating and copying, truancy and hitting another child. The 'punishment book' also lists some more unusual acts of disobedience, such as "belting a girl with a thong", "rubbing chewing gum into boy's hair", "spitting water through window into classroom", "letting off crackers", "playing two-up" and "misusing fire extinguisher". Mostly only boys were hit, although occasionally a girl was given a caning. Girls were usually struck across the knuckles with a ruler. Some teachers caned in the heat of the moment while others waited until after school and doled out the number of strokes they felt was justified by the bad behaviour.

It was still legal for a teach to hit a child until 1987 in public schools, and it wasn't until 1997 that administering corporal punishment became illegal in any NSW school, public or private. As a result of this legislation a new approach to discipline emerged. Disruptive behaviour today is just not managed.

Run Reporter

Scotch Mist forgot to ask anyone else to officiate so issued the last rites to Sir Les's excellent Glebe Gallop, suggesting it was a very picturesque & well set run worthy of 9 out of 10

Visitor

Mother Fucker, Hot Dick, Ice Box, Bren Gun, Curtseying & Powerhouse – I think that was all.

Birthdays – Sir Les just turned 70 something.

Prick Nominations

All the B2H3 members, who didn't show.

Sir Les was nominated by Powerhouse for inviting us to a venue that promotes Bun Stuffers as one of its delicacies.

Prickette Nominations

Bingo was nominated by Blondie for not wearing the prick hat last week.

Prick and Prickette: Sir Les & Bingo.
